Winners named in SECPA golf tournament

LA JUNTA – The annual Southeast Colorado Power Association Charity Classic golf tournament raised approximately $6,500 that will go into the company’s fund to benefit local charities.

The 21st annual tournament, held July 10 and 11 at the golf courses in La Junta and Rocky Ford, drew 80 men and 44 women golfers from throughout Colorado. The calcutta auction brought in over $19,000, with proceeds going toward prize money as well as SECPA’s charity fund.

According to SECPA Chief Financial Officer Jeff Bailey, the proceeds from the tournament are used each year to fund requests from organizations throughout SECPA’s service area. In addition, the event provides an opportunity for golfers from across the state to travel to the area. “Many of our players return every year and have developed good friendships and good relationships,” he said, adding that the concept of playing golf for charity is a big hit with participants.
